

Quantum Equivalent Sunlight Solutions:

An exploration of how vibration affects consciousness

I would like to begin this conversation with a call for openmindedness and courtesy. I'm attempting to create an explanation of why vibrational saturation of a uniform physical substance is yielding greatly diverse experiences, relative to the nature of the frequencies and amplitudes imparted through the process I use, by offering a speculative hypothesis based on some quantum science and some speculation. In short, I have created solutions that affect awareness, wellness and/or endurance in the human body, ranging from psychedelic to energizing to clearing and grounding, yet are chemically identical. This is a fascinating endeavor and one worth exploring with great care and respect. Thank you for listening.

Basic Premise:

The foundation of the basic premise of my work is the wave-particle theory of quantum science that surmises that matter exists simultaneously as both particle and wave. Waves are defined by frequency and amplitude. Therefore, according to this theory, physical substances can be defined both chemically and numerically.

Methodology:

In my process, I define these numeric values through dowsing. Dowsing is a method of accessing the super-conscious awareness of the body with the use of a pendulum. I then record this information on the outside of a glass bottle, fill the container with alcohol and expose the filled container to sunlight for 7 - 10 days. Over this period, the alcohol seems to become saturated with the information recorded on the outside of the bottle, imparting specific qualities which were not present prior to this process. These qualities are experienced in a broad a range from organizing and re-centering to challengingly psychedelic. This is a dynamic range and an outstanding claim, to say the least. The fact that this method is successful is mind bending and challenging to integrate conceptually with what is widely accepted to be possible in the scientific community. I welcome sampling of my quantum sunlight equivalent solutions as well as chemical analyses of them in order to verify both their noticeably varied qualities as well as their chemical uniformity.

The mechanism by which something like this could work is confounding to me. The only rational explanation would be that the universe has many properties of a hologram, or is a hologram. A vague outline of this process would be that the Sun is emitting a broad-spectrum of light frequencies, the writing on the outside of the bottle is acting as a quantum filter, the alcohol is receiving these filtered light frequencies, this is all resulting in a high concentration of these specific frequencies in the alcohol, and, finally, this saturation of frequencies correlating to various physical substances now imparts qualities similar to these substances I've defined as information. Once again, this is a hypothesis and as such is simply my best effort to honestly explain the results the method I'm using is yielding.

Conclusion:

We are entering a new age of technology and innovation. I am exploring a fascinating expression of this. This is simply a new expression of existing methods and accomplishments. The same results are achieved through the use of electromagnetic tuning devices. The reason I use the handwriting-sunlight method is to protect myself from legal intervention. Radionics are subject to extreme legal scrutiny in the US and the method I use, involving handwriting and sunlight is much protected as a basic freedom within the Bill of Rights.

To put it plainly, my goal at the beginning of this project was to manufacture legal psychedelics. I accomplished that. Then I became interested in making solutions that help integrate the sometimes overwhelming effects of deep psychedelic journeys. I accomplished that. And now I am endeavoring to legitimize my work and share my solutions broadly. I openly welcome those who would wish to engage with me in this.

Thank You!
